ABSTRACT

The bibliography cites social and economic research pertaining to rural British Columbia. Some 286 entries cover research from before 1940 through 1969. Analysis of the entries by date and source of publication precedes the main list of entries, which is arranged alphabetically by author. Separate indexes are included for author, subject, and geographical area. It is noted that the departments of the provincial government have published 28.0% of the entries listed, compared to 11.9% for the federal government departments and 2.1% for the municipal governments. Student theses account for 21.7% , journal articles 15.8%, and university publications 14.3%. A list is given of Socio-Economic Survey Reports on 14 locations throughout British Columbia and of special studies on (1) the influence of education and age on participation in rural adult education, (2) community structure and participation in adult education, and (3) socioeconomic factors related to farm size, farm income, and efficiency. INTRODUCTION

This bibliography of social and economic research pertaining to rural British Columbia is a revision of one prepared in 1967. The total number of items listed increased from 227 in 1967 to 286 in the present bibliography which includes materials published to the end of 1969. Excluded from both editions were studies dealing solely with Vancouver and Victoria; technical reports related to specific industries such as agriculture, fishing, forestry, and mining; and studies of Indians unless they pertained to general social and economic conditions in the province.

The items included in this bibliography were analyzed by date and source of publication. (See Tables 1 and 2). There has been an increase in the number of studies in every five year period for the past thirty years. Almost one-third of the items were published between 1965 and 1969, and some four-fifths have been produced since 1955. The number of studies in each successive period since 1945 has increased by between 16 and 21.

Departments of the provincial government have published 28.0 per cent of the items listed compared to 11.9 per cent for federal government departments and 2.1 per cent for municipal governments. Student theses were the second most frequent source of socio-economic studies accounting for 21.7 per cent of the items followed by journal articles (15.8 per cent) and university publications (14.3 per cent).

The items in the bibliography are listed alphabetically by surname of the author. Separate indexes are included for author, subject, and geographic area studied. As is usually the case in a bibliography of this kind, some items that should have been included may have been omitted. The compilers would appreciate receiving notification of any such studies.
